

MACAQUE MONKEY MADNESS

AMAR

Geronimo and I had a great day exploring the Batu Caves. The monkeys here can be very bold. Perhaps one of them knows what happened to Geronimo's luggage.

MARCO

Cheeky monkeys! Let's go and find out.

The Batu Caves are a network of natural limestone caves that have been transformed into a complex of holy Hindu temples. The caves attract thousands of tourists and worshippers each year, as well as lots and lots of very curious macaque monkeys.

HIDDEN GEM

The Batu Caves are also home to a rare species of trapdoor spider that spends its whole life deep within the caves. Instead of a web, it builds a tunnel-like nest and waits for its prey to brush against the doorway.

Hotfoot it around the Hindu temple to discover what Geronimo dropped. Watch out for those meddlesome monkeys!
